Form Group: _____

- What does revision mean?

Revision means to re-learn work that you have already done.

Revision is usually done in the build up to exams. In order to get the best results in your exams you must revise.

Revision can be done in a number of ways and it is important that you find out how you revise the best.

- How do you start to revise?

In order to revise you need to make sure that you have all of the information that you need. You also need to make sure that have put aside the right amount of time to revise and that you have somewhere to revise without anything to distract you.

- So ask yourself these questions.....

Do I know when my exams are?

Do I know what I am going to be tested on in all of my subjects?

Do I know what topics I am going to need to revise?

Do I have all of the information I need to revise for my exams? (Class work/books/notes)?

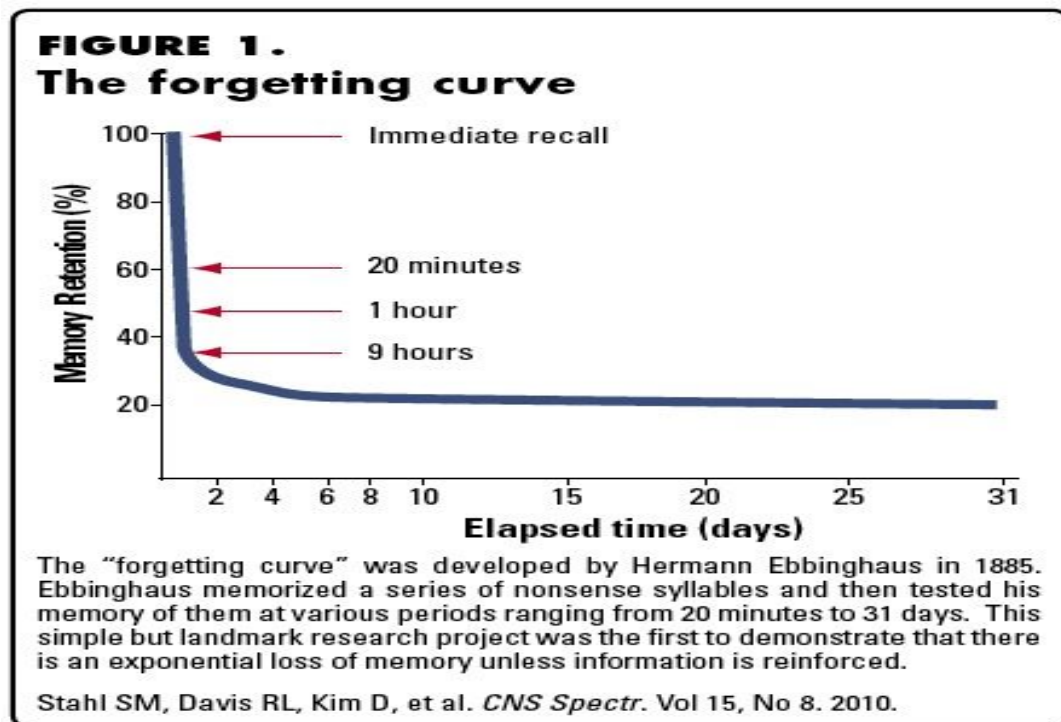

Do I know where and when I am going to revise?

This booklet will help you to answer these questions and to organise your revision.

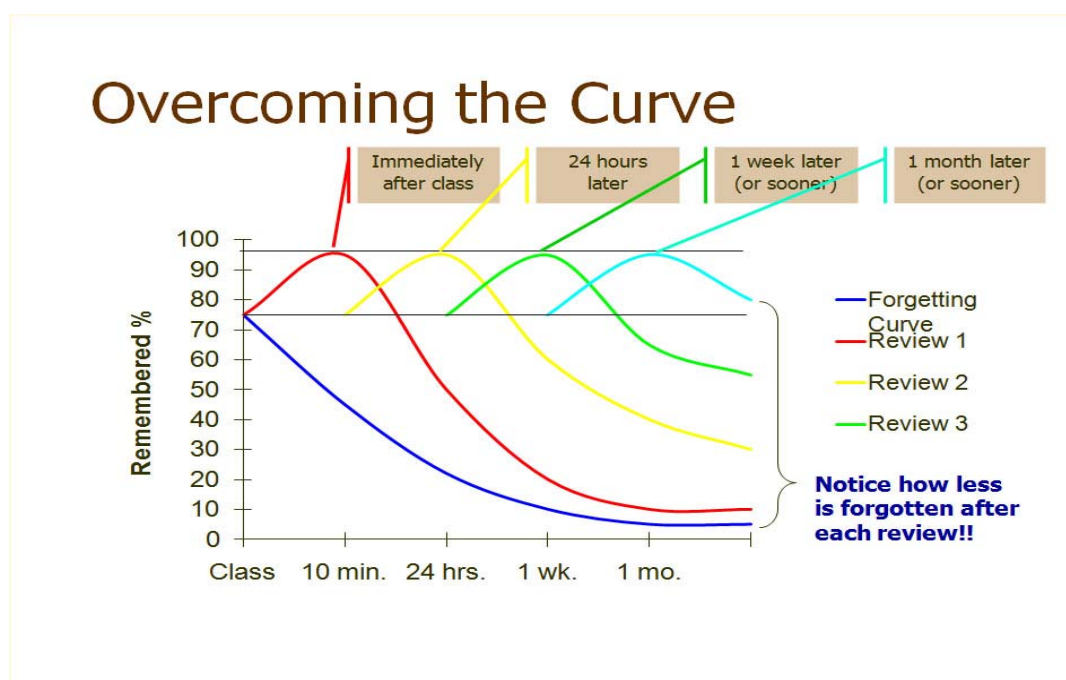

Why do you need to revise?

Because everyone will forget information that they have learnt.

But if you revise then it is proven you will remember more, especially if you keep doing it.

In the build up to your exams all of your teachers will be helping you with the following skills:

Improving your memory and recall - so you can remember what you need to know for your exams.

Reading for meaning -

so that you can read all of the information on your exam papers and know what the questions are asking you to do.

Helping you with exam strategies - so that you can do the best that you can in every exam.
